THE WRITING PROCESS – Do you have a great research study idea and need help in developing the topic for a scholarly paper? Does the idea of becoming fluent in APA leave you shaking in your boots? What does your dissertation chair and URM expect to see when reviewing your dissertation proposal? This workshop, with Dr. Cheryl Burleigh, SAS Faculty, will focus on the challenges doctoral student may face when developing and writing their dissertation proposal and study. Just take a deep breath, your questions will be answered in a lively presentation. (Room 103)

or

RESEARCH METHODOLOGIES – Dr. Amanuel Gobena, Bay Area faculty member, can guide SAS students through qualitative vs quantitative studies, types of research and data, and what it all means when you need to make others understand through dissertation written word. (Room 104)

12:00 PM Break

12:10 PM KITCHEN TIMER! & Lunch – Room 105

12:30 PM Breakout #2 (working lunch)

DISSERTATION BRAINSTORMING – Dr. Betty Diggs is a recent DM/Organizational Management graduate of the SAS journey. The dissertation brainstorming/advanced organization workshop will be an open forum workshop where students will have the opportunity to discuss and collaborative on issues, ideas, concerns and successes about the dissertation writing process. Students will share, and gain insight from each other."(Room 103)

or

IRB STEP BY STEP – Dr. Laura Brewer, Assistant Dean, Research Protection, will present via Skype. The University of Phoenix Institutional Review Board (IRB) is responsible for reviewing all studies conducted by University faculty, staff or students to ensure that the human subjects are protected through the research process. In this workshop, we will discuss the role of the University IRB as well as process and timing for reviews and researcher responsibilities. IRB related questions will be answered during the session as time allows. (Room 105)
