Advocacy for Nursing on Capitol Hill

As academic nursing leaders, AACN members have the opportunity to advocate on behalf of issues that impact our nation’s healthcare system. Participating in Capitol Hill visits is an essential component of the association’s work to educate Members of Congress and their staff as well as strengthen working relationships and serve as expert resources to legislation. The requests that AACN members bring to the Hill are echoed in a virtual advocacy message that is emailed to AACN’s Grassroots Network. Whether you have past experience or are new to this experience, AACN State Grassroots Liaisons and staff will help you to prepare for successful and worthwhile Hill visits.

Preparing for Your Capital Hill Visits
Monday, October 26
7:00-8:30 a.m.

During this breakfast session, AACN's Congressional requests that members will discuss on their Capital Hill visits are reviewed. Additionally, attendees have the opportunity to meet with other attendees from their state to discuss strategies they will use to prepare for effective dialogue during the Hill visits. AACN’s staff will also review what to expect during Hill meetings and answer any questions that members may have.

While the exact issues and talking points depend on Congressional action and are distributed shortly before the meetings, registrants are encouraged to become familiar with AACN's Federal Policy Agenda as it highlights the priorities that drive the association’s policy and advocacy work.

Advocacy for Nursing on Capitol Hill

As academic nursing leaders, AACN members have the opportunity to advocate on behalf of issues that impact our nation’s healthcare system. Participating in Capitol Hill visits is an essential component of the association’s work to educate Members of Congress and their staff as well as strengthening relationships and serve as expert resources to legislation. The requests that AACN members bring to the Hill are echoed in a virtual advocacy message that is emailed to AACN’s Grassroots Network. Whether you have past experience or are new to this experience, AACN State Grassroots Liaisons and staff help you to prepare for successful and worthwhile Hill visits.
